7

☐ DAY 1 ☐ DAY 2 ☐ DAY 3 ☐ DAY 4 ☐ DAY 5 ☐ DAY 6 ☐ DAY 7

THE SNACK AUDIT

> 7 days to find out where your snacking is really coming from.

WHY IT HAPPENS

Right, first things first.

Snacking doesn't really happen because you've sat down and decided you fancy the biscuit.

It generally happens while you're stood at the counter waiting for the kettle, and the packet is somehow already open.

That's mindless snacking. And it usually has very little to do with hunger.

Sound familiar?

- The 3pm slump at your desk.
- The sofa after 8pm, telly on, hand in the bag.
- Picking at the kids' leftovers while you clear the plates.
- Walking past the kitchen 6 times a day while you're working from home.
- A stressful day where food is the first bit of relief you've had.
- Being shattered and grabbing whatever's quickest.

Every one of those is a habit. And a habit can be changed once you can actually see it.

That's what this is for.

For the next 7 days we're not changing anything. We're just watching.

THE QUESTION BEFORE THE CUPBOARD

Before you go in the cupboard, stop and ask yourself 3 things.

1 Am I actually hungry? Rate it 1 to 5, where 1 is not at all and 5 is starving.

2 Is this a decision or autopilot?

3 What do I really need right now?

Sometimes the honest answer to number 3 is a drink, a 10 minute walk, 5 minutes away from the laptop or an early night.

If it's a decision, brilliant. Put it on a plate, sit down, really enjoy it and log it. No guilt. That's the 80/20 in action.

If it's autopilot, wait 10 minutes. Have a glass of water or a brew. If you still want it after that, go back to question 1.

Cut this page out and stick it on the fridge.

YOUR 7 DAY SNACK LOG

Every time you eat something outside of your meals, fill in a line. It takes 20 seconds.

Don't panic if you forget one. Just fill it in when you remember.

Be honest with it. Nobody's marking this. It's for you.

Day	Time	Where was I?	What I ate	Hunger 1 to 5	Trigger	Decision or autopilot?
1
2
3
4

Trigger key: Bored / Tired / Stressed / Habit / Saw it / Social / Actually hungry

Day	Time	Where was I?	What I ate	Hunger 1 to 5	Trigger	Decision or autopilot?
5
6
7

Trigger key: Bored / Tired / Stressed / Habit / Saw it / Social / Actually hungry

YOUR WEEK REVIEW

Day 7. Grab a brew and go through your log.

When does it keep happening?

Where are you when it happens?

What's your most common trigger?

How many were decisions and how many were autopilot?

If you fixed just one of these, which would make the biggest difference?

Bring what you find to your Friday check in. We'll build your focus for the week around it.

YOUR HOTSPOT PLAN

Pick your top 1 or 2 hotspots from your review. Not all of them. 1 or 2.

Then write an "if, then" plan for each one.

If I'm on the sofa after 8pm, then I make a brew and brush my teeth.

If I hit the 3pm slump at work, then I go for a 10 minute walk before I go anywhere near the vending machine.

Hotspot 1: If _____ then _____

Hotspot 2: If _____ then _____

YOUR KITCHEN RESET

- [ ] Get the trigger foods out of sight. Top cupboard, back of the cupboard, or not in the house at all.
- [ ] Put fruit, yoghurt and your planned snacks at eye level.
- [ ] Never eat straight from the packet. Plate it, every time.
- [ ] Eat at the table. Not stood up, not on the sofa.
- [ ] Pre log your evening snack the night before so it's already a decision.
- [ ] Scrape the kids' plates straight away, before the picking starts.

This goes alongside the video I sent out with this guide. If you haven't watched it yet, go back to that message and give it a watch over the weekend.

And if you want ideas for snacks that fit your targets, the Low Calorie Snacks guide is in HQ.

STRUCTURE BEATS MOTIVATION. EVERY SINGLE TIME.

Mark